

I think Republicans are more hypocritical. They claim gun violence is mental health, yet cut mental health funding on a regular basis.

user1

Also, they condemn Hillary Clinton for her emails, yet say nothing when finding out that Trump took 15+ boxes of classified documents home with him.

user1

Totally agree. They also exaggerate "gun control" is to scare their base

user2

All things considered, I think both parties play a "do as I say and not as I do" game when it comes to certain issues. However, with the latest mass shooting, I think Republicans are more guilty of not doing what they say,

user2

Right! It's not control, just safety measures that most everyone--at least those not getting their pockets lined with blood money--agree on.

user1

Republicans don't want to rock the boat with their NRA supporters, so they're not eager to enforce stricter gun laws.

user2

Its so frustrating we are the only country that has this problem. How can they sleep at night?

user2

I think they are hypocritical on just so many things. Pro-fetus but once the child is born they don't care. No extra help for food or you're a moocher. No extra health care or day care. It just gets to feel like they want to control a woman's choice.

user1

Yep they only care about babies until they exit the womb and then OH WELL.

user2

How can they see those babies smiling faces from their school pictures and be so dead inside that they'd be ok as long as they are getting campaign funds. I don't think that is a person that is fixable.

user1

Also, bringing a child into the world when you can't afford to care for the child or may have been sexually assaulted is cruel. And there are countless children in foster care who are never adopted. And a number of them who were have said they were abused by foster parents.

user2

Exactly, TD. And how many of those "pro-lifers" are foster parents?

user2

Plus, what a woman chooses to do with her body is nobody's business.

user2

They expect people to just not have sex and thats not realistic

user2

Yes totally! I saw an article that said would a state allow a 14 yr old go adopt a child...no? why not? Oh because they aren't emotionally able to handle it, financially able. yet let's FORCE them to give birth.

user1

400k children in foster care and 131k of them waiting to be adopted. What about them?

user1

That is another thing about guns too! An 18 year old can buy a gun but not alcohol or tobacco? Very backwards lol

user2

I was surprised to hear that the federal law is you have to be 21 to buy a handgun but only 18 to buy an AR15

user1

??

user1

And what about health issues? Say the woman is assaulted by a relative, the child could have life threatening genetic issues and suffer. Or if the woman has pre-existing health issues and was not assault, both she and the child could die during child birth. So why force women in those situations to give birth?

user2

Lunacy. They care more about staying in power than helping ensure Americans have a better life. I'll never vote for them
